Justice Geborne, on Sunday morning, commenced an investigation relative to the late collision of the Staton Island ferry boat Hunchback and a government barge, by which the latter was upset and one of its hands drowned.

that Timothy Donovan, one of the hands of the barge, was drowned.

James C. Lowder, of Brooklyn, testided that he had charge of the barge at the time of the cottision; that by it the barge was captized and several men thrown into the water, one of whom was drowned; at the time of the collision there was a strong flood tide, a middling sea, and the wind fresh from the northwest; as soon as the barge got out of the slip the Hunchback came in sight, and witness concavored to have the barge pass the slip of the Hunchback before the latter reached it; when the barge was about midway across the slip, the steamer was 30) yards off, she blew her woistle but did not stop, and struck us on the larboard quarter, throwing us under her copt guard, and we passed under the wheel.

At this point the examination was adjourned until Friday next, and Capt. Johnson was admitted to bail in $8,000.

At this point the examination was adjourned until Friday next, and Capt. Johnson was admitted to ball it $6,000.

Capt Johnson then submitted a statement of the occurrence to the following effect:—At the time of the collision, an assistant and myself had charge of the wheel of the Hunchback; we were nearing the slip at Waitehall, the wind blowing almost a harricane from the westward, and a flood tide running about five or six knots, making it very difficult to get the boat into the slip; when 300 or more yards from the slip, we saw the barge rowing across the slip against wind and tide, making apparently no healway; we blew the whistle, and I was conflicted the barge would put back; it did not, those in charge having made up their minds to cross the slip at all hazards. When the atpainer struck the barge she was close to the west Wintehall dock, and even then, if the men had kept on puilling she migh have cleared the boat's bow; but they all stopped, and the collision was unavoidable, as the barge drifted back with the wind and tide. One of the barge drifted back with the wind and tide. One of the barge drifted back with the wind and tide. One of the barge drifted back with the wind and tide. One of the barge drifted back with the wind and tide. One of the barge makes it a point to cross the slip when there is danger. I have had charge of the Hunchback for six or seven years, and never met with an accident before. Hat I stopped the boat three hundred, or even four hundred feet from the dock, ahe would have gone head foremest into the Custom House dock, and been in danger of sinking, besides killing some of my passengers who were standing near the bow. When the statemer struck the barge size was backing strong; we had on from 20 to 26 pounds of steam at the time.

Several gentlemen who were on board the Hunchback at the time of the collision were in court, and stated their belief that Capt. J. hanson did all in his power to prevent the casualty.

evening entered the lager beer saloon No. 9 Leonard street, kept by a man named Charles Jacobs, and after sireet, kept by a man named Charles Jacobs, and after calling for drinks commenced an assault upon two of the girls in the place. One of the girls, named Anna Fitzsim mons, being struck in the face, seized a water putcher and struck one of the party, named Paterson, on the head, inflicting a serious out over the left eye. The whole party then commenced a deadly assault upon the place, breaking, everything that came in their way. The doors and windows were soon demonshed. Two of the Firth ward officers soon came up, and succeeded in arresting Paterson just as he was running down the street. He was conveyed to the station house together with the immates of the saloon, where Paterson alleged that he merely entered the place to get a drink, and the first thing he knew he was struck on the head with a pitcher by the girl Anna. The proprietor of the place, Mr. Jacobs, and the girl Anna, however, alleged that Paterson, with three others, came into the place and committed an assault as above stated. Captain flutchings, in order to ascertain the truth of the story, visited the place and found it badly damaged. He accordingly discharged Jacobs, and held the girl on a complaint that Paterson made against her for assault. The other three rowdies made good their escape, but it is presumed they will be arrested and made to answer.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

SCNDAY, April 3-6 P. M. The week has been generally quiet in commercial cir des, the chief features being the large import entries of the past few days, owing to a large number of arrivals from sea and the movement in cotton. For the past few days the receipts at the Custom House for duties have exto decline rapidly, has recovered in consequence. The speculation in cotten which we noticed last week was checked on Wednesday by the arrival of the Persia with advices of a decline in the Liverpool market. Since then, our market here has been dull; holders attach considerable importance to the mysterious telegraphic despatch which was received in London just before the Persia sailed, and which caused an advance of 14 per cent in consols; they believe that it may have conveyed intelligence more favorable to the preservation of peace, and therefore decline to make concessions. Where sales are forced, a decline of 1/4 a 1/4 is sub nitted to. The receipts at the ports continue to fail of ast week's receipts were only 78,000 bales, against 97,000 bales same week last year—making the total receipts to date 3,185,000 bales, against 2,342,000 bales to same date in 1858. The decline in the receipts leads many to believe been excessive, and that the total crop may not exceed 3,700,000 bales. Breadstuffs are dull: to effect sales of wheat, corn or flour, holders are compelled to make con cossions. The fine crop prospect is beginning to tell against the market. Advices from Western New York and Southern Michigan report that the wheat has hardly uffered at all from the winter exposure; in Michigan arger number of acres was sown in wheat last fall than bout the same as last year. Ashes are unchanged. To and file Western merchants are buying with great caution and moderation. Manufacturers are, however, obtaining full prices. The stock of sugar has largely increased, and the price of Cubas and one or two other descriptions has declined; New Orleans is firm. Coffee is dull; an advance of ½c. has been established in La Gusyra. Hides are active, and some descriptions have advanced ½c. a. ½c. Spices are steady. Wool is quiet and strongly held. Tea is quiet, but firm. We have seen a circular containing some valuable figures of the tea trade. From this it was 255,309,280 lbe, which aggregate would go to show that the consumption in 1859 would be about 35,504,218 lbs., or 1 1 5 lb. per head of the population. The stock on January 1 was only 4,424,297 lbs., the probable import of the year, 28,000,000 lbs. It is hence inferred that the

As the specie shipment of yesterday will not cou to-morrow, it will show a considerable increase over last week. On Monday last the banks held $25,182,627. On the evening of that day the Granada arrived with $1,032,314 in specie. The Sub-Treasury lost bullion during the early part of the week, but has latterly been gaining it for duties, the simultaneous arrival of three large steamers having created quite a rush of import entries. The Sub Treasury balance yesterday stood at $7,816,780, against $8,045,268 at the end of last week. to be 5 for all short first class, and 6 for six months good paper; lower grades and longer dates go from 7 a 8 a 9. The banks continue to ask 5 per cent for call loans, but more money than can be used at present is offered to the brokers at four. Exchange has ruled steadily throughout the week, at the rates previously current. Bankers have been asking 100% a % for sterling, and 5.11% a 5.13% for francs; a fair business has been done, the bulk of the bills having been sold by a banking house which has been a large buyer of cotton bills in the Southern market. The importers seem to think that exchange must decline, as most of their remit-posits in the city savings banks since the revulsion, which went to show that these deposits had not fallen off, as might have been expected. Another circumstance has lately come to our knowledge which confirms the view that the country has been by no means so bare of money as is commonly supposed. One single house in Wall street had occasion lately to foot up the aggregate railway stocks, which has been produced by the hammering of the jobbers at the board, in the absence of resistance on the part of the public. The stocks which have uffered most have been Michigan Southern guaranteed and Rock Island. No railroad company in the country is n so improving a condition as the Michigan Southern; finances are being brought into a healthy state; its business is increasing; its managers, for the first time in its bistory, tell the truth about its affairs. The Rock Island, suffering momentarily from a want of traffic, is also in a sound condition. It has no floating debt, and on the first revival of business it will pay large dividends. Had the Michigan Southern directors, instead of making a candid statement of their affairs, concealed the truth and published a false statement; had the Rock Island, instead of passing dividends, as it has done, borrowed money to pay them, as it might have done, we should now have had to chronicle an advance instead of a decline in both stocks It must be well understood by the public that the decline prices that is going on in the stock market is not the truit of newly discovered weaknesses in the stocks which decline, not the effect of a pressure of stock for sale by eal owners, but simply the result of bold and successful hammering by jobbers within the board. The stocks which have declined the most are really those which are in the fairest way of recovery; and while the public cannot be accused of buying stocks, the scarcity of all the leading stocks in the street proves that they are not selling them. So long as the public holds aloof, and no bull combination is organized, the bear job bers will probably continue to control the market and to depress stock after stock. It is well, however, for the sublic to bear in mind that these Wall street jobbers are ot always safe guides. During the year 1857, previous to the crisis, these persons were generally bulls. Not a few of them operated so boldly on the side to which their convictions led them, that, when the crash came, the board and the street were for a time deprived of their society. They enjoyed, in wholesome retirement, an opportu-nity of pondering the truths which this journal had so onstantly uttered respecting the errors and the defects of our railway system; and so deeply did they study our arguments, so bitterly did they rue their own course, that, on their resurrection, they became confirmed enemies of the railways and persistent sellers of stocks. They have pursued this course uninterruptedly and with general

In the meanwhile a great reform has been gradually effected in railway management. Roads which used to spend 75 per cent of their earnings for work-ing expenses are now run for 55 per cent. Usalesa hands have been discharged. Unnecessary works of con-struction have been stopped. The number of cars run has been reduced. In almost every department of service on the leading railways leaks have been stopped and railroad-"when the economies that have actually be flected in 1858 are considered, one cannot understand how, before they were introduced, any profits at all could have been made." In fine, on a great number of leading reads all the evils which led to the crisis have been or are seing corrected, and these railways are ready to meet revived traffic with honest management, economical ad-

These facts are as obvious as the premonitory symptoms of the revulsion were in the spring of 1857. The bears at the board will not admit them, any more than they admitted the weaknesses of the railways in 1867. But if the revival of business, which is obvious on every side, only holds out, and if the crop in the West this season be anything like an average, the ultimate success of these parin 1857. People outside must beware of allowing the temporary fluctuations of the stock exchange to after their estimate of the real value of the stocks they hold.
